

ADLER Lodge ALPE

A luxury mountain refuge with cosy lodges in Alpe di Siusi

'Italy's most exclusive ski resort' – CNN Travel

Set in the heart of the Alpe di Siusi, a UNESCO World Heritage site, ADLER Lodge ALPE has 18 suites in its main building and 12 private wooden chalets scattered around the ski in-ski out resort.

In the main reception area stands a 40-foot-high totem, the creation of famous wood sculptor Adolf Vallaza.

Access by car to the majestic Alpe di Siusi is restricted and the best option to reach the property is to take the cable car from Ortisei, the village below.

The luxurious rooms and cosy luxury mountain huts are perfectly placed for exploration of the Alpe di Siusi's network of hiking and skiing trails. There, each season is unforgettable. Winter brings world-famous ski runs and beautiful cross-country ski trails. Spring sees the meadows covered in wild flowers, orchids, crocuses and edelweiss. The lush, green summer is marked by soft breezes and sunshine and autumn has the alpenglow ('enrosadira' in Ladin), a unique phenomenon just before sunset when the mountain walls begin to glow with a gorgeous mix of orange, red and violet hues. This lasts for a few minutes during which both guests and staff pause and enjoy together the magical setting.

There is a range of activities available at ADLER Lodge ALPE including yoga, horse-drawn carriage rides, snowshoeing, mountain biking and swimming in the heated indoor - outdoor infinity pool. Treated with therapeutic Dead Sea salt, the pool resembles a mountain lake, especially early in the morning as the mist rises in the crisp clean air.

The spa is in the loft of the main building and hosts a hay sauna and a fitness centre with large panoramic windows revealing the rolling meadows and sharp Dolomites peaks. Staff are available to advise guests on the best treatments for their needs – from facials, peels and massages to body wraps and wooden tub baths. The relaxation room has a glass ceiling allowing guests light and noise pollution-free to stargaze in a warm and luxurious environment.

The chef at ADLER Lodge ALPE is Denny Mair who is defined by a style that is both creative and authentic. He focusses on quality products from South Tyrol, directly sourced from local farmers, and his goal is to create something special with every day ingredients.

The use of local ingredients supports local farmers and producers and reduces carbon emissions by avoiding delivery miles. The resort serves mountain fresh water (still and sparkling) to reduce the use of plastic bottles.

ADLER Lodge ALPE is an eco-friendly hotel that complies with the Klimahaus Nature standards which includes strict requirements and criteria for responsible energy consumption, the use of sustainable construction materials and an architectural design in harmony with the surrounded landscape.
